Storing factors requires $k(M+N)+k$ scalars and applying them costs $O(k(M+N))$, compared with a full matrix's MN entries and action cost. This is useful when $k \ll \min(M,N)$; at full rank of a small matrix it need not reduce storage.