A finite $N \times N$ eigensystem replaces a possibly infinite-dimensional covariance operator. Dense cost is $O(N^3)$ with $O(N^2)$ storage; a new projection onto r components requires N kernel evaluations and $O(Nr)$ arithmetic. If an explicit low-dimensional feature representation is available, its ordinary PCA can be cheaper. The rank reduction is exact for the empirical feature span.