The values require one six-term sum, one indexed lookup and one six-term sum of squares. Constructing a frequency grid and applying quadrature adds an arbitrary grid-size cost and approximation error. The exact coefficient method is both cheaper and exact for the requested invariants.