Two eight-term linear sums, one lookup and eight squares suffice. Computing a whole DFT produces outputs not requested. Both the conventional property-based solution and the analytic character method have $O(N)$ input work and exact equality.